Father Becomes the Son - Son Becomes the Father

- by Bryce Burnett

It's been a few years ago, over which many memories we did instill,
Days flourished with my father as his boots I tried to fill.

Many a day we worked and I watched that man as he explained the ranching ways,
And he cut a life out of the land, in those harsh and unforgiving days.

I marveled at that man as he helped me and we carried that ranch along,
As the years went by and his body grew weak his mind remained real strong.

One evening Dad and I were checking cows going along the old Law place,
He opened the gate and as he tried to remount his horse, a look of despair came over his face.

For every time he'd put his foot to the stirrup, she'd move out of his way.
He said: Old girl what's wrong, what the heck's got into you today?

I grabbed the reins of that horse, pulling her around as her hooves dug into the sand.
I said: Come on old man get in the saddle – as I reached out to give him a hand.

I grinned at him as his leg crossed the saddle, then a distant look fixed in his eye,
He said: Guess I'm getting to old, the years, they pass so quickly by.

And it was at that time that I realized the father had become the son,
And I myself had become like a father, helping him to get the job done.

Well my father lived on that ranch until the year that he died,
And he taught his grandson to fish and shoot and how to rope and ride.

You'd be proud Dad how your grandson's grown and taken a liking to the ranch.
He's a hard worker Dad and you'd be pleased that from your family tree he's a strong branch.

Now my son he helps me with the ranch that I helped Dad with in days gone past,
And now I'm starting to realize that the years are going by way to fast.

The other day my son and I were driving the truck by what used to be the old Law place,
I opened the gate and he drove that truck through – as if he were in a race.

I closed the gate, then opened the door trying to get my foot into the cab.
I swear they make these trucks to tall now days, as the seat I tried to grab.

My son reached over, caught my arm and said: Come on old man get in,
Then I realized how times had rushed on by, as he looked at me with a grin.

As I closed the door, I'm sure I felt the moisture of a tear come to my eye,
I mumbled under my breath, My gracious God, how the years they pass so quickly by.

Welcome to our 25th Annual Production Sale

A quarter of a century – hard to believe time goes so quickly by. Have things changed in 25 years – you bet they have, but one thing that still remains the same is sound productive cattle. Another thing that remains strong is the pleasure and honour that I've had in meeting and enjoying the company of so many great cattlemen throughout the years.

The breeding and developing of livestock is an amazing business. A geneticist once told me wisdom starts when you realize the more you learn the less you seem to know.

Well we keep learning, analyzing and changing but we must also focus on goals that have been set, the knowledge that has been attained and most of all common sense.

Good productive sound cattle with built in fertility, longevity and user friendly characteristics are as important NOW as they were 25 years ago.

Take advantage of our successful breeding program and enjoy yourself.

As Always Bryce

Grandpa Walter

- by Bryce Burnett

It was back in the homesteading days, when sheep and cattle our pioneers did raise, that from our family tree this story is a branch.

On a quarter section next to Yellow Lake, Grandpa Walter Burnett claimed his stake, after overseeing a flock of sheep for the 76 ranch.

The settlers were worried and there was talk, about the coyotes being a threat to their stock as lambing season was about to get underway

So old MacKintosh a meeting he did call, at the Yellow Lake community hall, to discuss the over population of the coyotes that day,

He said our livelihoods we must protect, we could shout those varmints or better yet, eliminate them with some poison bait.

Then a stranger from a row at the back, said fella's give those coyotes some slack,
The species we just can't eradicate.

That government agent said we need to study the situation, of the coyote over population, so they concluded to reconvene with results in ten days.

Now that research team sleeked around, on those southwest hills of the lambing ground, to pursue the coyote and his menacing ways.

Well the meeting date was a Friday night, and stockmen returned to the Yellow Lake site, anticipating what the coyote study had revealed.

Eyes were on the government official that day, as he addressed the men and began to say,
Boys you're right the coyote population has increased in the lambing field.

Fella's we've developed a solution, to decrease the coyote from their intrusion, as he explained how they'd address the situation.

Now these coyotes we need to roundup, and make sure to every male pup, we apply the technique of coyote castration.

Walter Burnett stood up from a front row chair, and in his Scottish accent he did declare, my gosh sir your remedy is a bit of a shock.

You see you've delved into this matter much to deep, cause the coyotes are eating our sheep
It's not that they're trying to breed our stock.
